LITTLE ROCK – Arkansas Attorney General Dustin McDaniel filed a consumer protection lawsuit today against a Missouri man and two companies that control six Internet payday loan websites offering loans to Arkansas consumers at interest rates of more than 600 percent.

Daniel's lawsuit claims defendant Josh Mitchem and companies, PDL Support LLC and Platinum B Services LLC of Kansas City, Mo., control the operations of the payday loan websites, purported to be based in the Caribbean island of Nevis. According to the complaint, regardless of their location, the interest rates charged by the lenders violate Arkansas law.

The lawsuit claims that Mitchem, PDL Support and Platinum B Services control the websites, phone numbers, fax numbers and bank accounts used to make and collect upon the loans. While the lending entities were said to be located in Nevis, all lending operations were based in the Kansas City area.

McDaniel's lawsuit seeks an injunction to prohibit the defendants from offering or collecting the illegal loans in Arkansas, restitution to consumers and civil penalties.
